SUMMARY:

House Bill 4948 would amend 1972 PA 348, known as the landlord-tenant act, to prohibit landlords from requiring a prospective tenant to disclose any of the following:

- A conviction set aside (expunged) under 1965 PA 213.
- A finding of juvenile delinquency under 18 USC 5031 to 5043.
- Participation in a diversion program for juveniles.
- The assignment of youthful trainee status as provided in Chapter II (Courts) of the Code of Criminal Procedure.¹
- The entry of a judgment or order of disposition by a court of another state that is based on a finding that a juvenile violated a law of that state that would have been a criminal offense in that state if committed by an adult.

A prospective tenant could bring an action seeking an injunction against a landlord that violated the above prohibition. If the court determines that a landlord violated the prohibition, the court would have to issue an injunctive order requiring the landlord to cease and desist from the violation. A landlord that violates an injunctive order would be subject to a civil fine of up to $250 for each day of violation, up to a maximum of $2,000. A prospective tenant bringing an action under these provisions could recover costs and reasonable attorney fees.

FISCAL IMPACT:

House Bill 4948 would have an indeterminate fiscal impact on the state and on local units of government. The fiscal impact would depend on the number of landlords that violate injunctive orders and are subsequently ordered to pay a civil fine of not more than $250 for each day of violation up to a maximum of $2,000. Revenue collected from payment of civil fines is used to support public and county law libraries. Also, under section 8827(4) of the Revised Judicature Act, $10 of the civil fine would be required to be deposited into the state's Justice System Fund, which supports various justice-related endeavors in the judicial branch and legislative branches of government and the Departments of State Police, Corrections, Health and Human Services, and Treasury. The fiscal impact on local court systems would depend on how provisions of the bill affected court caseloads and related administrative costs. Because there is no practical way to determine the number of violations that will occur under provisions of the bill, an estimate of the amount of additional revenue the state would collect, revenue for libraries, or costs to local courts cannot be made.
